Executive Updates

Financial Report

The financial report indicated that the summer meeting incurred expenses over budget. However, this shortfall was mitigated by identifying savings in other areas.

Higher than expected revenue was generated from educational events, effectively offsetting the budget deficit from the summer meeting.

Relationship Building

The Executive Director reported significant progress in strengthening relationships with key organizations such as WSDA (Washington State Department of Agriculture), WSU (Washington State University), and King County Public Health.

These enhanced relationships will provide greater benefits for members and foster meaningful collaborations aimed at improving the industry as a whole.

WSPMA at a National Level

WSPMA (Washington State Pest Management Association) has gained recognition as a leader among state associations at the national level.

The WSPMA Executive has been invited to present at the last three NPMA (National Pest Management Association) association meetings, showcasing the successes and achievements of WSPMA.
